ENCANA INVESTS $250,000 IN CALVIN KRUK CENTRE FOR THE ARTS

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. – EnCana Corporation has generously donated $250,000 towards the Calvin Kruk Centre for the Arts in Dawson Creek. The funding, in combination with $6.4 million in federal and provincial and grants, moves the development of the centre - in honour of the late mayor of Dawson Creek – one step closer to reality.

“This donation from EnCana exemplifies the company’s commitment to our community. We are very grateful for its continued support and participation in the region,” says Dawson Creek Mayor Mike Bernier

“EnCana strives to address the needs and priorities of the communities where we operate. We have been part of Dawson Creek for many years and many of us were privileged to have worked with Calvin Kruk,” says Mike Forgo, EnCana’s Vice President of Business Services and Stakeholder Relations. “We know this project will strengthen and support the Dawson Creek community, as well as honour Calvin’s contribution to his City by helping an organization that was very important to him and to his community.”

The City’s historic post office building will be converted into a community and cultural centre and will include a multi-purpose theatre, meeting rooms, dance and textile studios and administrative offices. The centre will provide a venue for local arts and will benefit the community by showcasing cultural diversity in the South Peace River area.
